WRITTEN AT PANDOM.

This is a pasterni tragedy, the scene of which is let near Ragiand, this county. Scene, the home of a well known farm r with a calf, corn Principal characters, a love form swain of the locality, his sweetheart, one of the daughters, a new pair of duck trousers and the calf. Time :quite recently.

Acr First :- Enter young Jimmie Plowboy, at ired in a pair of immaculate duck trousers, and a few other things, of minor importance. Is greeted at the door by Miss Meliady Johnsing, who admires his new pantaloons and offers him a seat on the trunk. He deftly hoists his trousers, like he has seen the city chaps do to preserve the creases, and accepts the seat. As the curtain descends they are vowing eternal fidelity with clasped hands.

ACT SECOND :- Miss Melindy observes with a coquettish glance that there is going to be a meeting that morning in the little church three miles away. Jimmie gallantly volanteers to escort her thither, but regrets that be did not b, ing his buggy. Miss Melindy modestly overcomes this obstacle by replying that the family is away, and their buggy is at his service, provided he can eatch the old horse, turned joto the corn field to spend Sunday. Jimmle agrees to corral the animal and bidding his betrothed and affe th nate adicu, makes his exit in the direction of the corn

Acr THREE: - A young man it new duck trousers trudges out to the field, and at length copies the horse. half submurged in the weeds and corn. He realizes, little as a country boy is expected to know of duck trousers, that to venture forth in those spotiess pants will sailly of ace their pulchritude, so after getting into the interminable labyrinth of tail vegetation, be tactfully palls them off, and suspends them to a limb ou an adjacent tree He then meanders out to issee the rummating equine. ACT FOURTH: - A festive calf is seen leisurely wending its way out of the corn field, complacantly masticating something soft and white. It does not notice the look of disappointment on the coun enance of the young lady who frequently appears at the window and gazes anxiously out into the corn field, then vanishe to reappear at the door. At last she dons a sun-bounet and trips out to ward the field. She walks on until she is well a tranced in the weeds, when she is confronted by a discov that makes her blood run cold. There hanging hmp to a drooping tree

Acr Forth: - A young man, bristated in various purely and in various purely ated in various purely aterial ate seed ticks, wanders forth in the is needed.
